Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve, Singapore's first ASEAN Heritage Park is a site of international importance for migratory birds. It has been awarded a certificate by Wetlands International, thereby marking the reserve's formal entry into the East Asian Australasian Shorebird Site Network. Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve covers 202 hectares of various natural habitat like mangroves, mudflats, ponds and forest. It is also a sanctuary for a large variety of flora and fauna.

Singapore-Kranji Railway

The Singapore-Kranji Railway started its operation on New Year's Day of 1903. In April the same year, the line was extended to the Woodlands station, which was located just beside the Woodlands Jetty. This took almost three years of construction with the opening of the line from Bukit Timah to Fort Canning Hill. The Railway Station at the crossing was one of the earliest modern facilities at that time, even though it was only a simple single storey building. It was said that the line ran through some of the prettiest countryside on the island. A new Woodlands Road, running alongside the railway was built by the Public Works Department around the same period, replacing the old derelict Woodlands Road and served as a direct link between Kranji Road and the Railway Station.

Goat Farm

Hay Dairies, the only goat farm in Singapore, was founded by Mr Hay Yak Tang in 1988. With the help of Singapore Food Agency (previously known as Agri-Food and Veterinary - AVA/Primary Production Department PPD), Hay Dairies was formed. It imported its first batch of goats of different breeds from various countries - the Alpine, Nubian, Toggenburg and Saanen goats. The farm has about 800 goats of different breeds now. The farm is open to the public for farm visits and educational tours.

Kranji War Memorial

The Kranji War Memorial, a beautiful hillside cemetery situated about 22 kilometres from the city centre, honours the men and women from Britain, Australia, Canada, Sri Lanka, India, Malaya, the Netherlands and New Zealand who fought and died in the line of duty during World War II. There are more than 4400 white gravestones all neatly lined-up along the slope of the cemetery. Plot 44 is a Memorial for 69 Chinese Servicemen who were killed by the Japanese when Singapore fell in February 1942.
